COMMENT ON SPORTS

By Pete Fritchie

The topsy turvey world of baseball is about to be righted again, following that helter skelter start that saw almost everybody precisely where they weren't supposed to be. Everybody except those Yankees, naturally. They've already got the American League pennant signed and sealed, with delivery scheduled in September.
Aside from those Yanks, the rest of the AL cubs forgot their lines when the curtain rose on the '58 season. How else could you explain such phenomena as Washington's lowly Senators battling Baltimore for second place? And Cleveland way down yonder in the canebrakes?
After the early missed cues, somebody finally came around with the proper scripts and the AL race has apparently settled down to more normal routines. The once-tough Senators and bustling Baltimore will now proceed to battle furiously for the cellar spot, leaving the likes of the first division to Cleveland, Boston, and maybe Detroit.
Kansas City withstood the rarified atmosphere of the top four longer than any of its fellow denizens of the lower division. But the Athletics after the fleeting glory of beating the Yankees twice in a row, can also be expected to skid from the heights.
It was fun while it lasted.
From here in, the race to watch will be the one shaping up in the National League. That's apt to be a real Donnybrook before the leaves begin to turn.
At this point it's anybody's ball game and the bases are pretty well loaded. The bracing mist that is San Francisco's weather specialty was just the right tonic for those wonderful Giants.
But they can't be expected to breeze along forever with no interference from the likes of Milwaukee. In addition, you can't write off those Pirates just yet, and Cincinnati hasn't made its move.

SHIFT IN STATUS SET

London.- Britain has agreed to terms for the transformation of the colony of Singapore into a self-governing state similar to a protectorate.
The terms provide for Britain to retain responsibility for Singapore's defense and foreign affairs, and ultimate authority over the island's internal security. The change in Singapore's status is to take place by March, 1959.

1958 SEASON STARTS AT JAMESTOWN

Jamestown, Va.- Virginians and their visitors in 1958 are being invited to use the picnic facilities of Jamestown Festival Park without charge, state officials have announced. As tree-covered area of 100 picnic benches, plus water fountains and soft-drink dispensing machines, is available to families and groups each day at the Park, which is adjacent to Jamestown Island on the James River.
All of the attractions of last year's Festival are again open to the public in the Festival Park and on Jamestown Island, including the reconstructed three ships, John Smith's Fort, Powhatan's Indian Lodge, the old and New World Pavilions, and the Glasshouse of 1608.
In addition, a Loop Road, which was opened late in 1957, offers new experiences to Jamestown visitors this year. It encircles the 1500-acre island and shows visitors the marshy, tree-covered atmosphere in which the settlers lived 351 years ago.
Although the celebration of Jamestown's 350th birthday ended last year, the extensive Festival Park and exhibits are being continued open daily by the Commonwealth of Virginia. Jamestown Island itself is jointly maintained by the National Park Service and the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

Wallpaper In Popularity

By Frances Dell

Wallpaper has become very popular. Never before have so many beautiful designs been available. The wallpaper sample books are large enough to give you a very good idea of the overall effect of a pattern.
The large wallpaper books are usually available through wallpaper or decorating departments of most any department store. Even very small towns today usually include at least one gift or fabric store with a varied selection of patterns.
Once you have decided on a design, your problem will be to determine the number of rolls needed. Just remember that a single roll of wallpaper contains about thirty-five square feet of paper. You can figure thirty feet of coverage per roll. Allow for loss in matching patterns.
Add up the lengths of the walls of a room (a 9x12 room adds up to forty-two feet). Multiply this figure by the height of the wall. Divide by thirty, and you will arrive at the number of rolls needed.
Most wallpaper fans do not stop at walls. They cover chests, trays, table tops, folding screens — the sky seems to be the limit here.
Most of us will agree, there is nothing like a touch of wallpaper to give a room a new, fresh look.

KNOW THE WEATHER

By E. H. Sims

Why do moot barometers fail to give an accurate reading where they are used?
Barometers must be set for the locality, in which they are used. More often than not, barometers are manufactured at some distance from the place of purchase. If they are not set for proper pressure differences, they will always be inaccurate.
A sure way to see that your barometer is accurate is to set it by an official barometer in your immediate locality. Or, if there is none, you can get an official reading at a certain location, and adjust yours by taking into consideration any difference in altitude which might exist.
Barometers are relative to sea level readings and the greater the distance above sea level, the less the atmospheric pressure. This is the principle of the altimeter used in aircraft.
